I wanted to drop a note to thank you, formally, for your assistance with our recent search for new office space. We are so pleased with our new location, and we are optimistic that the new environs will keep us energized for years to come.

When we began our search, we were confident that it was something we could undertake on our own for a couple of reasons. First, we knew what we wanted in our new space, and really didn't think anyone else would "get" our vision. Second, we were trying to do the impossible: find a nicer space for less monthly costs, so we were not interested in "hiring" someone who would only cost us more.

As you know, mainly because of your persistence, we finally came around and realized that we needed professional help. While we knew what we wanted, we had no idea where to look or how to evaluate similar properties. And, more importantly, you helped us understand the amazing number of negotiation variables in commercial real estate that affect all aspects of budgeting.

I would be happy to recommend your services to friends and colleagues in need of commercial or retail office space options. Regards,

Tom Keekley
